Integrating Dr. Tan’s Balance Method with Distal Point Microsystems for Rapid Clinical Results

In this acupuncture module of Traditional Chinese Medicine we will focus on strategies for rapid and obvious positive clinical outcomes. If you missed Dr. Richard Tan’s seminars, you will not want to miss this review of the Local Balance Method and 5 primary acupuncture subsystems. For many disharmonies, but especially in cases of acute or chronic pain, the Local Balance Method can give the patient 75% or more relief with 1-5 needles in just a few seconds. We will demonstrate the immediate effect of this Local Balance Method on volunteers from the class.

As important in my clinical practice as the Local Balance Method, is Distal Point Microsystems, particularly in the hands and feet. We will briefly review Channel-clearing, ECIWO Theory, and Classical “Extra Points” (non-channel points). Understanding these acupuncture applications will quickly lead to derivation of a rapid and powerful treatment protocol that will be demonstrated on human volunteers.

Further, we will introduce the concept of Dr. Tan’s Global Balance which is used to treat functional disharmonies of the body or multisystem diseases and also for treating diffuse or broad areas of pain. We will also review Dr. Tan’s 4 Magic Points, 8 Magic Points, and 12 Magic Points and their application. Lastly, we will demonstrate the immediate effect of Distal Point Microsystems, Local Balance, and Global Balance Method on volunteers from the class, and canine and equine worst cases/patients.
